ABSTRACT

In today's education, change is taking place with such speed and with such great impact that educators are constantly striving to identify and locate materials, research, and information appropriate to the many innovative programs in public and professional education. This comprehensive listing of 4,000 sources of information on differentiated staffing, nongraded-continuous progress learning, and open concept schools is an endeavor to provide the latest, most significant resource materials for interested writers, researchers, and professional educators at all levels. Entries are grouped under the three major concepts and are cross referenced with subject index codes. (Author)
